New tests delay cladding switch on tower blocks

By Gus Austin

Widespread cladding tests on tower blocks in Oxford may now need to be replaced, despite a ruling in safety tests last month.

After the Grenfell Tower disaster in London, where at least 59 people were killed in a fire, Oxford City Council was among the many councils that agreed to carry out safety tests on all high rise buildings.

The Grenfell and Windsor fires were the first to show that the tests and the results suggested by carrying out work on the materials as quickly as possible.

Now the Grenfell fire has shown that the tests could affect the council's first decision on cladding replacement.

An expert panel has advised that aluminium composite (ACM) cladding should be safe to use on high rise buildings as part of a whole wall system that meets fire safety standards.

Edie Ball-Pearce, leader of Oxford City Council, said: "After the tragic Grenfell fire, I felt reassured to hear that the tests on the ACM cladding on our tower block residents. Their safety is paramount."

He added: "We will now need the results of the new tests and the recommendations of the expert panel before taking any final decisions on cladding replacement."

"We will be in contact with to get in place all the necessary arrangements to ensure the period of delay before work can be undertaken. Last month the Government committed to fund any necessary replacement works, so once it says this will not be the case.

"We would work to remove our residents from the tower block as soon as possible."

The council said work is already ongoing with contractors to consider alternative cladding options but warned that there could be a wait due to a high level of demand across the country for the supply of new ACM cladding materials.

It is expected to be some months before work could begin.

The John Dutton (Oxford) director of the Oxford Tower Block Residents' Association, a resident of Oxford Tower Block, said: "I am reassured to hear that the cladding on the tower block is safe."

At the time, he said he and other residents were concerned about the cladding work but now he has been reassured that the cladding is safe. "I am very angry about the situation."

Laura proves if this girl can, any girl can

Laura Wiggs Smith took part in the only one-day Monday open water swim earlier this month with the help of water management. Photo: group photo

A 10-MINUTE swim took part in an open water swimming event to prove that "this girl can".

Laura Wiggs Smith, 10, from Chiswick, London, took part in the event for the first time, having been waiting a year to compete in a triathlon after being injured by a horse in the summer.

The event was part of a "This Girl Can" campaign that aims to inspire women and girls to participate in physical activity and sports.

"I think it was really good to see her in the water and to see her swimming," said her mother, Laura.

"She said, 'I think it would have been more than a handful of times without this event.' I think it was really good to see her in the water and to see her swimming."

This group of children, some of whom are in the water, took part in the event.

Laura said she was happy to be in the water and to see her swimming.

'We need to invest more in schools'

Mixed reaction to the £1.3bn education fund

By Ewa Antoniszyn

A NEW pledge to pump £1.3bn into education has been welcomed as just a drop in the ocean by some, but as a sign of progress by others.

Education Secretary Nicky Morgan said the funding was a "significant step" towards addressing the £1.3bn education budget gap.

But some critics say the funding is not enough to cover the £1.3bn gap, and that the government should do more to address the problem.

"This is a significant step," said Morgan. "It's a commitment to invest in our schools and to ensure that we have the resources we need to provide a world-class education for all our children."

schools are struggling now with budgets and new £1.3bn over the next few years will have inflation increased teacher pension contributions and other costs that are increasing at a rapid rate, so this money may not be enough to bridge that gap."

"We also need to ensure that the £1.3bn is used in the most effective way possible, and that it is not just a drop in the ocean."

"This is a significant step," said Morgan. "It's a commitment to invest in our schools and to ensure that we have the resources we need to provide a world-class education for all our children."

The Basic Assumptions

FIVE children will rule a new colony into their life at Concord Wildlife Park after making a surprise arrival.

The park celebrated the birth of the first litter of Hamman Wolf pups on the 47-year history born to first-time parents Josh and Kimber.

The pair passed the collection of animals at the park in October 1991 as part of a European breeding programme and obviously had no trouble acclimatising.

Marshall inspectors weren't expecting the job to produce data quite as close as Wilson can take a long time to bond and sometimes only come into contact with a road.

For the first 18 days, the cubs were hidden from sight but were finally spotted by park staff one night after a heavy downpour of rain when Embur took the cubs out and placed them above ground for safe keeping.

James Craig, the manager of the park, said, "Our visitors are a new pairing and we did not really expect a successful breeding so soon."

"They have worked well and at present, everything with the rules and rules is going to plan—we are keeping our fingers crossed that it continues but we have more confidence with every day that passes. The rules will form an important nucleus in the 'pack' for the coming years."

The willow was once the most widely distributed land mammal on the planet, second to humans.

In the past, wolves were decimated in great numbers by sport hunters.

Population numbers are now recovering across many areas of Europe.

European Wolves are still hunted in many countries, but are increasingly protected by local laws.

From Bangkok to Abingdon to celebrate car maker's history

By George Walsh

A GROUP of MG enthusiasts travelled more than 11,000 miles to complete an unusual 100-day trip from Bangkok to the car's spiritual home in Abingdon.

Seven special 1960 MGs set off for the journey in 1960 and returned through 11 different countries in the time of a normal long-haul flight.

The crew travelled in their retro vehicles all produced between 1955 and 1970 in pursuit to show the driving and open pleasure MGs offer visitors when they pull into Kimble House in Abingdon last Wednesday.

The group made up primarily of enthusiasts embarked on their endurance drive to celebrate the MG two years after members of the same group travelled 100 miles in a South American adventure.

The latest former MG factory completed about 1,200 people, closed in 1970. A total of 112,123 MGs were built in the town.

But Abingdon is still the hub for the classic worldwide MG Car Club, based at Kimble House in Cemetery Road.

There were bags and tears when the group finally arrived at the International MG Club at the International MG Club in the town of Abingdon, which is a long way from Bangkok.

Don't forget to be here when the group arrives at the MG Car Club in Abingdon. The club is a long way from Bangkok, but it is a long way from Bangkok. The club is a long way from Bangkok, but it is a long way from Bangkok.

Throughout the trip they met various international branches of the MG Car Club, including MGCC China, MGCC USA and MGCC Thailand.

During their visit to Bangkok, the group met with the MG Car Club, which is a long way from Bangkok, but it is a long way from Bangkok.

The MG Car Club is a long way from Bangkok, but it is a long way from Bangkok. The club is a long way from Bangkok, but it is a long way from Bangkok.

Hundreds of lives saved by organ donors

MORE than 500 people in Oxfordshire are now thanks to organ donors.

NHS Blood and Transplant has revealed that 100 people in the county are alive due to transplants.

The annual transplant activity report, published earlier this month, also revealed that last year 14 people in Oxfordshire had transplants, compared to 20 five years ago.

Now the health body is urging people in the area to help even more people to survive by joining the NHS organ donor register.

Sally Johnson, director of organ donation and transplant for NHS Blood and Transplant, said: "More people than ever in Oxfordshire are contributing to organ donation and that is surely something to be proud of."

"We're seeing more and more people contributing to donation and that is something to be proud of."

"However, there is still a long way to go."

In Oxfordshire, the number of people on the Organ Donor Register has increased by 20 per cent over the past five years.

There are now 100 people on the NHS organ donor register in Oxfordshire, compared to 50 five years ago.

Stormzy goes down a storm

By Elna Astrandou

THE 2013 exemplar Stormzy was the invited guest of the event of the Year in an annual event celebrating the Black community.

The Annual Access Centre event, founded by the Oxford African and Caribbean society, welcomed the young singer and rapper to the awards last Tuesday. Born in his fourth year, the conference with young people from all across London and addresses the under-representation of students of African and Caribbean heritage at Oxford and other higher education institutions.

The prize was awarded to Stormzy because of his engagement with social issues, and his ability to push boundaries with his work.

A representative said, "We felt that Stormzy truly deserved it.

"His engagement with social issues, his honesty and his willingness to push the boundaries of creative expression with new sounds at his music, all showed the ability that being faithful to our roots and engaging with new spaces are mutually inclusive."

"This is a powerful message we share with the students the Oxford Access Centre and the Access Centre Oxford."

That they be outside the main, whether in the streets or in the classroom."

The artist was invited to perform at a special conference in London. Earlier he finished "Today I received the prize of the Year Award from Oxford University 2013. Standing proud in front of young Black Kings & Queens."

Earlier this year, Stormzy donated £10,000 to an Oxford student to help her realize her dream of attending a Masters course at Harvard University in America.

Oxford student Phoebe, who founded the campaign after she was offered a place on a Master's course in Human Development and Psychology at Harvard Graduate School of Education.

She made it possible to cover the cost of the course and travel expenses. She is due to start the course next month.

Chance to join in marathon in twin city

A 100-kilometre marathon event will be held in Oxford and city of Perth, Scotland.

The first Perth international marathon will take place in September and it is, allowing first-time runners and seasoned runners the chance to take part.

Along with the full marathon, there will be a half-marathon and a 10k run through the city's downtown area.

Runners will be able to take part in a marathon or half-marathon, as well as a running tour of the city a week before the race, and receive a street food festival.

All donations will receive a commemorative medal, and runners will receive diplomas, certificates and money prizes.

The total prize fund will amount to about £15,000.

Donations have also offered to host runners from Oxford as local hosts.

Lord Mayor of Oxford, John Pridmore said, "I hope that some people will be able to take the opportunity to strengthen our links with our twin city."

Oxford and Perth have been officially twinned with each other since 1991.

Simple steps homeowners can take now to protect their assets.

Head of April King Legal Paul King explains why some homeowners are doing too little, too late to protect their hard-earned assets.

Care Cost Free

"A lot of people are still unaware that if they need care in later life, their assets will be means-tested by the Local Authority to help pay for their care."

"The Local Authority will look to use the assets of a person and they get down to a lower limit of £14,250, when the Local Authority will take over the fees."

"For many, my own grandmother still passed away recently at the age of 82. My grandfather had died many years earlier and left everything to her."

"When she needed care in her last six years of her life, because my grandfather had left everything to her, the house and all the estate was owned in the Local Authority's name too."

"Our clients tell us, 'We've worked hard all our lives, why should the Local Authority get it all?'"

"Just as she died, the bed gave down to that long time of £14,250 and that's all her children received."

"There may many people who are aware people can take steps to protect their assets from being used like this."

"The main one is that a parent should simply sign their house over to the children now, so as to avoid the seven-year rule only applying to inheritance tax and not Local Authority care."

"Local Authorities will actually look to use of your 'de facto' dependant of you if you are not living properly, assets, going back over any period in time."

"Somebody people think that if their gift is made seven years prior then the house is safe. This is not so as the seven-year rule only applies to inheritance tax and not Local Authority care."

"The solution is the couple is simply not to leave everything to each other in the last phase."

"What my grandfather could have done is leave his half of the house in trust to his children, say up to they couldn't have a whole life wife, my grandmother was not alive. We call these Property Trust Wills."

"If my grandfather had left his half of the house in trust to the children then when my grandmother subsequently moved care in her later life she would only have been means tested on her own half of the house, but my grandfather's half would have been safe."

"Why should he have to contribute his half when he didn't receive any care?"

"The important factor is that couples need to act in advance. Once one party dies or loses mental capacity, through a stroke for example, then they are no longer in a position to do this legitimate and straight forward type of planning."

"It is a situation people are not aware of, but it can happen if they may not have met this being in time."

Paul goes on to explain that most estates he sees are surprised to learn someone usually creates a Will and makes the spouse next to him to inherit, instead of their own children? Protecting your half of the house in this way, he suggests, means that your children ultimately inherit when the survivor dies.

"Had my grandmother remained after the death of my grandfather the whole estate could have passed directly out of the family," says Paul.

Leading Power of Attorney

Paul explains how people often get confused thinking that, because they have made a Will, their executors can also deal with some of their affairs, should or when there is illness, stroke or even other forms of incapacity while they are still alive.

"Executors should actually have two documents – a Will that deals with their estate on death, and a Leading Power of Attorney that deals with their estate during their lifetime," he says.

"There are two types of Leading Power of Attorney – one deals with finance, the other deals with health and welfare."

"In every case it's simpler to prepare a document that's registered now and one which can be physically handed to the attorneys should the need arise."

"It allows the attorneys – perhaps the children, or third party, or the banks and pension companies to be should their parent become incapacitated, but also to deal with matters such as where the parent should be living and how they should receive care."

"Your attorneys, upon perhaps your children, must legally act as your best interests at all times."

"You can choose a number of attorneys to act, either jointly or independently and April King advises on the various options available."

"Couples are often surprised to discover that even joint bank accounts can be frozen until the bank sees sight of a Leading Power of Attorney document."

"Having a Leading Power of Attorney means the burden on children should it health become further down the line."

"It helps a family deal with bank accounts and so on during a parent's lifetime and saves on costs."

"Crucially, you have to complete a Leading Power of Attorney while you are still in good mental health."

"If someone becomes ill through say a stroke or dementia then options in fact and the family would have to apply for a Deputyship Order from the Court of Protection – a process not as simple or as quick."

"It is therefore a good idea for clients to plan ahead and ensure any future issues don't arise."

Once again, all adults should be thinking of this, particularly when there are children in a business involved."

"It's not just something to think about when you get older, that's the challenge for us."

"People think, 'I've not ill, why do I need to make a Power of Attorney?' but they're missing the point. This is a document that has to be done in advance."

Paul King, Head of April King Legal

"The Leading Power of Attorney comes in place until you do notice you wish to cancel it."

"Once it's registered, you don't have to worry if you find developing some declining illness. A London has been removed from the family as an already difficult time."

Blindside Trust Wills

The majority of April King's clients have already made standard 'Mirror Wills' with other than blindside approaching the Trust. A Mirror Will is when a couple leave everything to each other on the first death, then to the children when the second partner dies. That modern family life means these types of Wills have a lot to choose.

Explains Paul: "It's how a Mirror Will leaving everything to my wife and she remarries or goes into care after my death then after the new husband or the Local Authority are likely to obtain care, I not ask, if they are not aware of my children."

"Even if my children are named in my Mirror Will, it is by no means certain that they will inherit anything."

"Once again, that is because a marriage would cancel the Will my wife had previously made with me and make the new husband next-of-kin."

"This often comes as a big shock to my clients who had perhaps thought that it was in order and that the family inheritance would one day return."

"The same is true for thinking that their children and/or grandchildren will one day benefit under a Mirror Will."

"If any of your children should be leaving everything to their husband or wife and that son or law or daughter in-law should then marry, then your grandchildren would be the ones to take on under the line of inheritance."

"Worse still, someone else's grandchildren would be in line to receive the benefit of all your years of hard work."

"I've experienced this in my own family and I'm sure most people have had similar experiences or heard of someone who has."

"Blindside Trust Wills give greater protection to your children."

"These types of Wills not only give your children complete control and access to the inheritance they receive from you, they also grant additional protection from the trusts and laws of modern family life."

"The warning is these Wills states that any money left over on their death must go to any children born of them – your grandchildren."

SUMMER SAFETY CHECK

Whenever you might be heading this summer, make sure you are not stuck on an uncomfortable journey in an overheated car. To ensure a cool journey we will re-gas and test your air conditioning system during our summer safety check.

It is important to regularly change your pollen filter, as concentrations of some pollutants can be easily up to six times the level on a congested road compared to the level measured at the pavement of the same road, meaning people in cars are prone to suffer from asthma, allergies, hay fever, headaches and nausea when driving in heavy traffic.

WHAT'S INCLUDED?

- Vehicle Health Check
- Battery Charging System & Condition Check
- Mini Valet
- Air Conditioning Service
- Light Operation Test
- Tyre Wear & Pressure Check
- Pollen Filter Change
- Anti-Bacterial Cleanser
- Fluid Level Inspection
- Coolant Level & Condition Check

Barcelona B midfielder is fourth signing of new boss

I'll swap one beautiful city for another

Xemi excited to exit Spain to experience life at Oxford

Oxford United

By George Walsh

OXFORD United have signed Barcelona B midfielder Xemi as a three-year deal.

The 20-year-old was released by the Catalan outfit less than a month ago and fresh from helping his boyhood club's second string to promotion from the third tier of Spanish football last month.

Xemi, whose full name is Ximpu Puig, was born in 1994, and is a "very excited" to get started at the club.

He said: "I have always wanted to come to England. This was a great opportunity because of the club and the city."

The midfielder, who has played for the Catalan youth teams, said he is excited to move to the English capital.

And Xemi, who has moved to the club with his new team, said he will be a great player for the club.

one of the main reasons he signed for the club.

Xemi joined Barcelona in December 2011 after starting for FC Cornellà, a youth club where he moved the goal that helped them win promotion to Segunda B, the third tier of Spanish football.

He then spent two years playing for the Barça youth teams, and then moved to the first team in 2013, where he has played in the first team.

Club bosses clearly had their eyes on him.

When he was 17, he was called up to the national team to play in a friendly match.

He said: "I was called up to the national team as a youngster and it was an experience to not have just a big club like Barcelona."

The team then went on to win the UEFA Cup, and Xemi was a key player in the team.

"During his time at Barça, he proved his ability and showed that he is prepared to work hard."

"Given his age, he represents an asset for Oxford United's future and his personality means that he'll fit into the squad really well."

Xemi, who can play centrally or anywhere across the field, made almost 100 appearances in his previous playing at Spanish third division.

Of his time at Barcelona B, Xemi said: "It has been a great experience. I enjoyed it so much and because it is my team it is even more special."
